

DR. DAVID BOLMAN

PROVOST AND CHIEF ACADEMIC OFFICER

Provost Bolman has dedicated his career to educating technologists who will shape and better our community through the innovations that they help to create. As someone who cares greatly about learning, his work at UAT has had a theme of providing students with exceptional moments and growth through the skills that their professors possess as they create learning spaces. As a technologist, he has worked to create a university where the culture of innovation is celebrated and students learn the tools, techniques, concepts, and responsibilities of applying technology in ways that lift up human society.

During Provost Bolman's three decades at UAT, the university has grown from a single classroom of 13 students into a destination private college campus dedicated to advancing society through the wise use of technology. Provost Bolman has written and been a featured speaker on the nature of technology as a foundational human force. He is an alumni of and past President to the Board of Valley Leadership, is chairing Valley Leadership's Leadership Institute, is a member of New Schools for Phoenix Fellows and an alumni of the FBI Citizen's Academy.

EDUCATION:

BS Computer Graphics, Arizona State University

MS Technology, Arizona State University

Doctor of Philosophy

Management of Engineering & Technology, Northcentral University